Side Quests and A4 (Individual Work)

One significant change I made while completing this side quest was choosing “joy” as my emotion. This heavily impacted the way I approached editing the example code, as I could not just make changes with no purpose—every change I made to the blob’s physics, appearance, environment, etc. had to be intentional in order to successfully represent joy. This forced me to take my time changing certain values in the code to see exactly how they affected the game. From understanding how each code and value changed the code, I was able to make my desired changes.
